

AUGUST 2021 NEWSLETTER

Hello to all our members,

Victoria is back in lockdown, and will remain in lockdown for the foreseeable future, but the Film Society committee is still working hard to bring cinematic experiences to our members.

In association with the Yarra Ranges Council and the Classic-Lido-Cameo cinema chain, we have arranged an exclusive free online rental of The Last Suit, August's scheduled film, for Society members. The Last Suit will be available to rent online from Classic at Home for free until September 12.

I have included detailed instructions (courtesy of YRFS President Vivienne Bond) on how to sign up for Classic at Home below. We will also be holding an all-members Zoom catch-up on September 8 to discuss The Last Suit, cinema and life in general.

We also hope to resume cinema screenings as soon as it is safe to do so, and we are still aiming to deliver the Warburton Film Festival in October.

There are several cinema releases I'm looking forward to seeing once Victoria reopens.

I could have seen The Suicide Squad, James Gunn's latest offbeat superhero action-comedy, in cinemas on August 5, but I held off due to the imminent lockdown six, as I knew my readers in the Star Mail would be unable to see the film once the following issue comes out.

I'm very eager to see Reminiscence, a stylish dystopian sci-fi thriller with shades of Inception, The Night House, a horror film about grief and suppressed conflict, and Shang-Chi and the Legend of the Seven Rings, a Wuxia martial arts epic and the first Marvel Cinematic Universe film with an Asian lead.

While I've never been much of a James Bond fan, I'm still interested to see No Time To Die, which will be Daniel Craig's final outing as Bond.

And I've been looking forward to Denis Villeneuve's Dune for years, so I'd be heartbroken if we missed its planned October 21 release date.

Hopefully we can stay the course on the current restrictions and get this Delta outbreak under control. I got vaccinated recently, and I'm looking forward to my second dose in mid-November. I would encourage anyone who is able to receive the vaccine to get vaccinated, as vaccination protects you from serious illness and is an important step in Victoria ultimately living with coronavirus instead of hiding from it.

I hope you enjoy The Last Suit, and I'm crossing my fingers for us returning to the cinema together in the near future.

Cheers.
Seth

The Last Suit

PG Drama, JIFF • 1h 31m

Buy $9.99 Rent $5.99

Abraham Bursztein, an octogenarian Jewish tailor, embarks on the adventure of a lifetime. Escaping a family intent on confining him to a nursing home, Abraham leaves Buenos Aires in search of the man who, over 70 years ago, saved him from certain death.

With assistance from a roll call of generous strangers, the sharply-dressed suitmaker makes his way across Europe to Poland, undeterred by travel mishaps, family foibles and geographical obstacles.

Heartfelt and charming, with a wonderful comedic flavour, The Last Suit reminds us of the enduring importance of family, friends and keeping your word.

FRITZ'S POEM
Amour

I know about the hassles that ageing brings.
Forgetfulness, and many other things.
So when I saw the title "Amour"
I thought, that'll cheer me up for sure.
But any love that was depicted here
Was in terminal illness, suff'ring and fear.
No joy of life that one could see.
Suffering acted out brilliantly.
Love in "Amour" I did not see.
The death of my love differently.
The best thing of the film, I thought
Was how the pigeon there was caught.
